Dear Sir:

I am quite annoyed about the Microsoft case. I am a senior citizen who is learning computer language daily and greatly admire innovation and progress. It would not be plausible for Microsoft to surrender their codes. That is the same as asking KFC to disclose their recipes. I feel Microsoft is on a fast train of entrepreneurial and innovative ideas for the public good at a reasonable price. There are some who cannot measure up to the fast train so they are crying "foul." This is not fair to hamper progress. If you can't stay on the train, get off and follow!!!! It is time to get off of Microsoft's back and wallet. Please leave this wonderful company alone.
Sincerely, Virginia Fodi, St. Augustine, Fl.
